THE BROWNIES WON THE GAME

To-Day's Result Will Settle the Dispute for Championship Honors.

In a game that was filled with sensational plays, and which ended amid grent excitement, the Buownies beat Manchester yesterday afternoon by the score of 8 to 6. This was done in eight innings. What might have transpired in the other inning, it is extremely difficult to say. Anyway the boys from the Southside had leaped with one solid jump into the limelight and tallied three tim s in their half of the ninth, making the score 9 to 8 in their favor, when dar .ness came and with the darkness the callness came and with the darkhess the chling of the game. It was tough luck, but Manchester is accustomed to that. Nothing but tough luck has followed this aggregation for many moons, and when they scored the necessary linee runs yesterday, even the weather man half to interfere and usher a cloud over the diamond.

Charters and Trevillian did the box work and they were about evenly matched, Trevillian having a shade the better of the pitching. Batters connected with his delivery when there was nothing doing in the run line, while those who found Charters did so when a hit meant something. But the elements had much to do with the game, It started off all right and Munchester chalked up two tailies. Then it rained. When the heavens ceased to turn their flood loose on the diamond the game resumed, and the resurse was something terrible for the Manchester rooters.

Started Off Well.

Started Off Well.

Started Off Well.

In the first inning Charlers was all right and there was nothing doing in the run line. But in the second the Waterloo started and in the fourth ended. Hicks, with a dinky little biff, got to first and proceeded to steal the second sack. Shaip waited and illicewise did Eacho wait. The bases were crowded and Trevillian was at bat. And Trevillian ozoned, McLeavey thereupon smacked a good one and was followed a moment later by Mills, who drove one to the right field freedom. Bowers and Mills scored afterwards, when Elimore made a bad throw to second. Five runs was all for the inning. Trevillian, the curver, started things in Trevillian, the curver, started things in the fourth inning. He met the first ball and drove the sphere out in the corner and drove the sphere out in the corner of the lot. When the horsehide returned Trevillian was resing on the bench, having splited all of the bags. McLeavey followed this home run with a clean one and Mills got transportation to first, forcing Mc. to the second sack. Bowers beat out a bunt. filling the sacks. McEvoy went out from short to first and McLeavey scored. Rose flow out to center and Mills came over. Hicks biffed a good one and Bowers died at the plate from a one-hand throw by Jennings in left, gardon, it was made to the fourth inning and in the eighth inning another two tallies were chalked up. And with the acore standing $ 10.6 in favor of the Brownies, the ninth inning opened.

Then Darkness Came.

Manchester was first at bat. Charters took one in the ribs and walked to first. Hogan sacrificed him to second. Jennings got four wide ones and Charters secred on a wild pitch. Jack Anthony, for the fifth time in the day, drew a single and Jennings scored. On a passad ball and a wild pitch Jack came over the plate with the third run. The score was 3 to 8 in favor of the Manchester fellows with the Brownles one inning to play. Charters was warming up and to play. Charters was warming up and team behind him was getting gingery when- it got dark.

The game was called and of course it went back to the eighth inning. 'Just Manchester's luck," said a rooter "Just Manchester's luck," said a rooter, and the crowd filed away. But there were none who were not satisfied, for the exhibition offered plenty of excitement. To-day's game deedles the series between the two nines and settles the question of which aggregation is worthy to wear the title of champions.

The score follows:

Hon. L. L. Livingstone, a member of Congress from Georgia, and an up-to-date farmer of that State, was the first set speaker introduced. His subject was "The Tariff as it Affects Agriculture," Mr. Livingstone is a low tariff man, so low that he is almost a free trader. Ho is a Congressman and a politician, and of course had to talk politics—couldn't help it. He had his paper written out all right and it was a splendid essay on free trade, but he could not confine himself to his paper, As he warmed up he just had to speak out "in meetin." It was noticeable that the audience was not allogether with him, but Mr. Livingstone is an attractive speaker and commands, attention, He held the attention of his nudlence as he showed with facts and figures the injury that a high protective tariff was doing to the farmers. He said official figures showed that when the manufacturer received $450 the farmers. tariff was doing to the farmers. He start official figures showed that when the manufacturer received $4.50 the farmer received $1. "Is it right, under this condition, to burden the farmer with an extraordinary tax?" said he.

And again, in his address he said: "What you are going to do with your surplus produce and to whom will you sell them? is the question you are to

After speaking at length on other phases of the question Mr. Livingston said: "The only way to get what you want in this world is to go after it." And he urged the farmers to recognize what they wanted and to go after that thing introduce the speaker of the evening, who was Mr. Will Bl Powell, of Shadeland, Pa.

Mr. Powell has the reputation of being the wealthiest farmer in Pennsylvania, in fact, a millionaire farmer. He is a fine-looking gentleman with flowing side whiskers of much length, and as he appeared before his audience in a dress suit and with those long whiskers carefully brushed out, he was received with much applause, because he presented a handsome appearance. His subject was "Climate, Soil (or Food), and Development," and upon this theme he spoke something over an hour, "Mr. Powell was at times humorous, occasionally serious but never painfully didate. His theory was that development for good or bad, in animal or in human beings, was due from all eternity to climatic inufence, or to soil or to food or to all of them combined.

an address by Hon, J. Bryan Grimes, of North Cajolina.

The subject assigned Mr. Grimes was "Agricultural Resources of the South." It could not have been assigned to a better man, for no man in all the South, perhaps, knows better the resources and possibilities of the Southland. His paper was a comprehensive review of the difficulties and trials of the Southern people in their offort to rise from the ashes, their success in rising and their present commanding position as a factor in the country's upward and onward march to greatness. Mr. Grimes's paper did not mince matters, did not offer any apologies to anybody, but showed how a downtrolden people by their own inherent manhood and power had pulled out of the slough of dispond and becofe great.

an address by Hon. J. Bryan Grimes,

The Woman Member of Farmers' Congress.

Gathered at Farmers Meeting.

The first night session of the Congress was very well attended by members of the body, and also by a considerable number of Richmond people. First Vice-President Cameron presided and called the meeting to order at a few minutes after 8 o'clock.

The Congress was not in a humor for business, strictly speaking, and when the chair, according to pragramme, called for resolutions, there was not a response. The chair had nothing more to do, but to introduce the speaker of the evening, who was Mr. Will B Powell, of Shadeland, Pa.

sell them? is the question you are to solve."

Speaking of the statistical facts bearing on free trade and high turlift, he said: "Rural wealth doubled in ten years under free trade; if did not quite double in thirty years under high tarift,"

"In 1850 farmers owned more than one-half of the land here. In 1900 they owned one-fifth, Gentlemen, you need to get a hustle on you. If that ratio goes on, Mr. President, what will we own fifty years from now?"

He then earnestly urged the farmers to have representatives working in Congress for them. Every enterprise except the farmers have paid attorneys lobbying at the national capital, he said.

Of the seventy-eight billions of in creased wealth from 1860 to 1900 less than one-sixth went to the farmer, who makes up one-half of the population. "It's enough to make you come back here six months from now and have another meetins."

After speaking at length on other Personal Notes.

Among the prominent American farmers in attendence upon the Congress are a number of men who have made their mark in the agricultural world.

Air. John M. Stahl, the Secretary, is not only one of the most successful of Illinois farmers, but he is a man of letters. He is the owner and editor of the Farmers' Call, a widely circulated agricultural journal, and is a writer whose magazine articles have attracted attention. Mr. Stahl has served the Congress well as Socretary, and will probably be the next president of the body.

Mr. Campbell, of Michigan, is an influential member of the body. He is an excongressman of his State.

Frofessor John Hamilton, a leading member of the congress, is a plain Pennsylvania farmer, though his home is now in Washington. He is a specialist in the government's Agricultural Department and is the organizer of farmers' institutes.

Mr. Levi Morrison, of Pennsylvania, Personal Notes.

A number of delegates mulnly from the North part of the territory, wanted to dispute Mr. Livingston's propositions, and several short speeches were made. Mr. A. L. Martin, of Pennsylvania; Mr. W. F. Browne, of Hancock county, W. Va., and Mr. S. N. Black, of Illinots, made short talks on the general subject. F. Browne, of Hancock county, w. Va., and Mr. S. N. Black, of Illinots, made short talks on the general subject.

Hon. H. C. Adams, of Wiscansia, a farmer and a Congressman, was the next programmed speaker. His theme was "The Federal Government and the Farmers." It was a wide open thome, and the Wisconsin Congressman treated it in a wide open way. He had diready prepared his paper, but he didn't stok to it. He started out with an earnest, entertaining and really eloquent reply to Mr. Livingston's "free trade" arguments. Mr. Adams was humorous, and proved to be a very attractive speaker. Before he goldown to the subject assigned him he made a very strong, protective tariff speech, and when he did finally got down to his theme his prepared paper proved also to be a pretty strong argument for a protective tariff, although he declared with much carnestness that the present tariff is very much in need of regulation and reduction.

Mr. Adams is, a very attractive speaker and here way of nutting his ylews before studies.

Capain Laughinghouse, also of the Old North State, is one of the picturesque figures of the congress. He raises all the good things of which North Carolina sell is noted, and in addition he sports a luxuriant growth of side whiskers.
